The Wolf And The Fox Part 2

It was just the Moon's yellow reflection in the water.

Now, the Fox needed someone to pull him out.

After some time, a Wolf passed by and saw Fox.

The clever Fox acted as if he was eating the cheese.

He said, "Oh Wolf, join me in eating this cheese."

The Wolf jumped into the other bucket and dropped into the well. The bucket, in which the Fox was sitting, came up to the edge of the well.

The poor Wolf was left all alone in the well. He had been made a fool.

Moral of the story: Think before you act.
